Introduction

What do you wonder?

We all wonder . . . through a window . . . a frame of reference.

We wonder because our frame of reference doesn't provide us with all the answers.

As our frame of reference changes/expands, some mysteries are solved. For decades scientists held to . . .

The Steady State theory of the universe

No beginning and no end. Einstein. But at the same time, an infinite actual was impossible.

1929: Edwin Hubble

Observed that galaxies are speeding away from us in all directions.

1931: He drove Einstein up Mt. Wilson to see it for himself. In 1964, the discovery of . . .

Cosmic microwave background radiation

Confirmed the universe had a beginning. Big Bang theory was born.

BB Theory led to: New frame of reference. New questions. New wondering.

We all have a framework that helps us make sense out of life and helps us make decisions that make sense.

It serves as a moral/ethical framework. Right/Wrong. Just/Unjust. Fair/Unfair.
